

You Are Not Alone

There are currently 30,000 suicides annually in the US. It is estimated that for every suicide there are 6 survivors. Based on this estimate, it has been suggested that there are now at least 4.5 million survivors.

Beyond Surviving: Suggestions for Survivors

by Iris M. Bolton

1. Know you can survive. You may not think so but you can. experiencing a remnant of grief, an unfinished piece.
2. Struggle with “why” it happened until you no longer need to know “why” or until you are satisfied with partial answers. 14. Try to put off major decisions.
3. Know you may feel overwhelmed by the intensity of your feelings but all your feelings are normal. 15. Give yourself permission to get professional help.
4. Anger, guilt, confusion, forgetfulness are common responses. You are not crazy, you are in mourning. 16. Be aware of the pain of your family and friends.
5. Be aware you may feel appropriate anger at the person, the world, at God, at yourself. It is okay to express it. 17. Be patient with yourself and others who may not understand.
6. You may feel guilty for what you think you did or did not do. Guilt can turn into regret, then to forgiveness. 18. Set your own limits and learn to say no.
7. Having suicidal thoughts is common. It does not mean that you will act on these thoughts. 19. Steer clear of people who want to tell you what or how to feel.
8. Remember to take one moment or one day at a time. 20. Know that there are support groups that can be helpful, such as Compassionate Friends, Survivors of Suicide groups. If not, ask a professional to help start one.
9. Find a good listener with whom to share. Call someone if you need to talk. 21. Call on your personal faith to see you through.
10. Don't be afraid to cry. Tears are healing. 22. It is common to experience physical reactions to your grief, e.g. headaches, loss of appetite, inability to sleep.
11. Give yourself time to heal. 23. The willingness to laugh with others and at yourself is healing.
12. Remember, the choice was not yours. NO one is the sole influence in another's life. 24. Wear out your questions, anger, guilt or other feeling until you can let them go. Letting go doesn't mean forgetting.
13. Expect setbacks. If emotions return like a tidal wave, you may only be 25. Know that you will never be the same again, but you can survive and even go beyond surviving.
