Suicide Prevention/ Intervention Training

Training Professionals & Communities in Suicide Prevention & Response®

Mental health providers are on the front lines of suicide prevention efforts. A unique community-based, public health approach, Connect training increases the competence of mental health providers in recognizing and responding to individuals who are suicidal or at risk for suicide. This training includes National Best Practice protocols, interactive case scenarios, discussion, exercises, PowerPoint, and printed materials.

Suicide Prevention/Intervention training highlights:

- Knowledge of National Best Practices for mental health providers in responding to suicidal behaviors based on Zero Suicide, JCAHO, and National Strategy for Suicide Prevention guidelines
- Risk factors and warning signs for suicide risk assessment including an understanding of the difference between deliberate self harm and suicidal intent
- Decision trees for emergency response and standards for phone screening of emergency calls
- Process for developing risk formulations for building comprehensive safety and transition plans
- Communicating with family members or other support persons as part of crisis and safety planning
- Confidentiality requirements and communication with others who may be involved in the client's care or treatment
- Best practices concerning restricting access to lethal means, safe messaging and communication about suicide
- Connecting with other health and mental health provider systems
- Individual, family and community risk and protective factors and ways to strengthen the positive influences that prevent suicide and other risk behaviors in a community through a collaborative approach
- Suicide as a public health issue and its impact on communities, family members and friends
- Suicide data and how age, gender, culture and other factors impact suicide risk
- Reducing misconceptions and stigma about suicide as a barrier for people getting help
- Promoting positive action steps to increase help seeking
- Local resources and how they can be utilized for persons at risk
- Self care skills
