

Clinicians as Survivors of Suicide Loss

CLINICIANS AS SURVIVORS OF SUICIDE LOSS

Research indicates that the suicide death of a client can have a profound personal and professional impact on clinicians working in the mental health field. Likewise the death of a family member, friend or colleague can also take an emotional and professional toll. Too often clinician survivors receive inadequate support in navigating the difficult legal, ethical, personal and performance related issues which can occur in the aftermath of a suicide death. This workshop will explore these difficult challenges and will include a panel of clinician survivors who will discuss how suicide death has impacted them.

PARTICIPANTS WILL:

- Discuss research related to the impact of suicide on clinicians
- Learn about personal and professional impact suicide has on clinicians
- Discuss the legal and ethical considerations for clinicians after a suicide death
- Develop a process for supporting clinical staff after a suicide death
